THE National Honor Society in Forensics

Delta Sigma Rho-Tau Kappa Alpha emerged last month from the deliberations of the General Council of Delta Sigma Rho at Indiana University and from the National Council of Tau Kappa Alpha meeting at Indiana State College as a definite proposal incorporated in a constitution and bylaws. Both groups gave the most careful consideration to the provisions tentatively set forth. Each organization was concerned with retaining in the new society the rich heritage of the past but each was also eager to give it a freedom which would enable it to meet the challenges of an ever changing future and thus to establish itself as THE national honor society in the field of forensics. Mr. Oswald Ryan, the leader of the founders of Tau Kappa Alpha, in an eloquent speech before the National Conference of his society endorsed the merger and declared that the proposed society exemplified the dreams and hopes of the founders for one strong and universally recognized society pre-empting the forensic field. The same sentiment has likewise come from Dr. Horace G. Smith, a founder of Delta Sigma Rho, who supports the merger and feels that the two societies might well have been brought together many years ago.

The deliberations in both Delta Sigma Rho and Tau Kappa Alpha have served to emphasize the similarity in the ideals and practices in the fraternities, rather than to reveal deep-seated differences. The basic forensic philosophies are defended with equal vigor in both; the program in each instance represents a middle-of-the-road position which all may support without sacrificing principle. Happily, the Joint Coordination Committee has been able to incorporate in the constitution and bylaws the best of the time-tried provisions of each society and to propose an organization which can build upon the firm foundations so ably developed through the last fifty years.

The proposed name for the new society reflects this basic approach: Delta Sigma Rho-Tau Kappa Alpha. Here in the name each society retains an identity with its past; each loses nothing, each gains the support of the other. Likewise it is proposed that the new publications be THE SPEAKER AND GAVEL. Lifetime subscribers as well as undergraduates will continue to have a publication which carries on its masthead the names so well established over the years. With the combining of the resources of both publications, THE SPEAKER AND GAVEL may well become the foremost journal in the forensic field and bring even wider recognition than we have had previously. Again each society will lose nothing while each will gain immeasurably from the new publications. Perhaps the most difficult decision to reach was that of the emblem or key. What should it be? The Balfour Company which has manufactured the keys for both societies, pointed out that the shape of the Delta Sigma Rho is unique and not duplicated in any other fraternity, whereas modifications of the scroll of Tau Kappa Alpha are used by several organizations. The Joint Committee proposed therefore, that the basic shape of the Delta Sigma Rho key be used with the letters DSR-TKA arranged in a design which will reflect the symbolism of a new ritual combining the principal features of the ones now being used. All of these features illustrate that the past has been used as a foundation for the future; nothing of value has been discarded and the best has been preserved to make Delta Sigma Rho-Tau Kappa Alpha in every respect a society which will make all of us ever mindful of our glorious past but always eager for new achievements in a brilliant future.

Those who have given so much thought to the merger and who have become increasingly enthusiastic for its realization hope that the alumni, the officers and the chapter members will share in the deliberations. They feel that as the advantages of merger are given careful consideration, the same enthusiasm will develop so that perhaps in 1963 Delta Sigma Rho-Tau Kappa Alpha will become THE national honor society in forensics, so recognized by every institution of higher education in America. Thus the hopes of our founders will become a reality and a dream completed.

The Tenth Delta Sigma Rho Congress

ROBERT C. JEFFREY, Congress Director

Indiana University

The Tenth Delta Sigma Rho Congress convened in the Whittenberger Auditorium of the Memorial Union at Indiana University at 5:00 P.M. on Thursday, April 12, 1962, with President Herold Ross presiding. The roll call of delegates yielded the information that thirty-one schools were represented by eighty-five student delegates and thirty-six faculty representatives. Two alternate delegates and three student members of the Evaluation Committee also reported their presence for a grand total attendance of 126.

Dr. Ross officially welcomed the delegates to the Congress on behalf of the officers of Delta Sigma Rho. He was followed by Dr. Auer who welcomed the delegates on behalf of Indiana University, and then proceeded to introduce Dr. William Hoskins of the Indiana University Business School who delivered the Keynote Address on the topic, "The Implications of the European Common Market on the Economy of the United States."

The address of Dr. Hoskins was so well received that a formal request was made from the floor to have it reproduced. It was properly reproduced by the local committee and distributed to the delegates on the second day of the Congress.

At the party caucuses held on Thursday evening Mr. Cameron Hendershot (Conservative) of Grinnell College and Mr. Richard Culp (Liberal) of Washington State University were nominated for Speaker of the Assembly from their respective parties. Miss Glenda Gray (Conservative) of the University of Wichita and Miss Judith Wallace (Liberal) of Wichita University were nominated by their caucuses to serve as Clerk of the Assembly. Both of the Liberal nominees were elected to the positions of Speaker and Clerk of the Assembly in the First Session of the Legislature on Thursday night. The parliamentary maneuvering and debate on nominees was expertly handled by Dr. Larry Kuhl of Western Reserve University who served as Speaker Pro-Tem of the assembly. Dr. Kuhl was ably assisted by Dr. Donald Olson of the University of Nebraska who served as Clerk Pro-Tem. The business of electing officers extended the opening session until 12:00 midnight, thirty minutes beyond the scheduled adjournment of 11:30 P.M.

On Friday morning, as scheduled, the several committees divided into sub-groups of the general topic to consider advance bills and develop original bills growing out of the discussions. Following lunch on Friday, the Joint Conference Committee meetings were conducted. The debate and discussion in those meetings produced several minority groups. Dr. Donald Torrence, Faculty Parliamentarian for the Assembly, and Chairman of the Steering Committee, conducted the Steering Committee admirably in selecting the bills to be considered in the Second Session of the Legislative Assembly. The Second Session was called to order at 4:30 P.M., and following a brief recess for dinner it reconvened on Friday evening. The second Session of the Legislature was characterized, as usual, by the parliamentary maneuvering of minority groups in an attempt to gain a majority status. After all of the maneuvering and debating was concluded, one bill presented by the majority from the Joint Conference Committee on the Effect of the European Common Market on the Economy of the United States, was passed. That bill appears elsewhere in this publication.

Aside from the regular deliberations on the legislative procedures, there were two highlights of the Congress. The first was at the Congress Banquet, held in the Frangipani Room of the Indiana Memorial Union. After the dinner President Ross introduced the officers of the Delta Sigma Rho and the guests. He then introduced the main speaker for the evening, Dr. Russell B. Nye, Visiting Professor of History at Indiana University. Dr. Nye spoke on the topic: "For It Was Indeed He," and received an enthusiastic response.

The second highlight on Friday evening was the mass initiation conducted by Dr. R. S. Griffin of the University of Nevada. Twenty-five persons were admitted into membership of Delta Sigma Rho in the candle-light ceremony.

Although minor problems occurred in the scheduling of meetings and in the conduct of the students in the Legislative Assembly, the total outcome of the experience provided by the Congress to the students was solubrious. There is little question but that those who attended the Congress are better equipped to deal with the theoretical and practical problems of the European Common Market in its political, economic, and military implications, and certainly in terms of its relationship to the economy of the United States.

Delta Sigma Rho Student Congress

The first Legislative Assembly of the Tenth National Delta Sigma Rho was called to order at 10:30 p.m., April 12, 1962 in Whittenberger Auditorium of the Indiana Memorial Union. Temporary Chairman Professor Larry Kuhl of Western Reserve presided, Professor Donald Olson serving as temporary Clerk of the Assembly, and Professor Donald Torrence as Parliamentarian. The floor was opened to nominations for Speaker of the Assembly. John Palmroth of Knox College nominated Cameron Hendershot of Grinnell for the Conservative Party. Robert Jablonski of John Carroll University nominated Richard Culp of Washington State University for the Liberal Party. Mr. Culp was elected on the second ballot and assumed the chair immediately. The floor was opened to nominations for Clerk of the Assembly. Douglas Baur of Allegheny College nominated Glenda Gray of the University of Wichita for the Conservative Party. Woody Thompson of the University of Wichita nominated Judith Wallace of the University of Wichita for the Liberal Party. Miss Wallace was elected on the first ballot and replaced the temporary Clerk. The Speaker announced that the Steering Committee would meet in Whittenberger Auditorium at 3:00 p.m. Friday, April 13. It was moved to suspend the rules to allow a courtesy resolution: that the Assembly extend its appreciation to Mr. Kuhl and Mr. Olson for their assistance as temporary chairman and temporary clerk. The Assembly adjourned at 11:40 p.m. to reconvene at 4:30 p.m. Friday, April 13.

Judith Wallace
Clerk of the Assembly

The Second Legislative Assembly of the Tenth Delta Sigma Rho Congress was called to order at 4:45 p.m., April 13, 1962 by the Speaker of the Assembly. Seventy-eight (78) delegates answered the Clerk's roll call; seven (7) delegates absent. The minutes of the First Assembly were read and approved. It was announced that copies of the keynote address by Dr. William R. Hoskins were available and that information concerning the American Institute of Parliamentarians could be obtained from Tom Johnson of Rockford College. In response to a request from the Liberal Party Floor Leader the Speaker ruled that members of the Liberal Party would be seated on the Speaker's right and members of the Conservative Party would be seated on the Speaker's left in the Auditorium. The floor was opened to courtesy resolutions. Tom Johnson of Rockford College submitted a resolution commending Dr. Mildred F. Berry. John Palmroth of Knox College introduced a resolution commending Dr. Robert C. Jaffrey, his staff, and the Indiana University, and Dr. William R. Hoskins. A third resolution was introduced by Steve Thal of the University of Michigan. The Speaker announced the order for consideration of the Joint Conference Committee bills and the time limit for debate: the bill concerning "the effect on the U.S. Economy" to be considered first with one hour and thirty minutes for debate; the bill on "Political and Military Implications" second with forty-five minutes for debate; and the bill on "the effect on the world market" with one hour and forty-five minutes for debate. The floor was opened to the majority bill of the "effect on the U. S. economy." Robert Jablonski of John Carroll University introduced the majority bill and moved its adoption. The Speaker announced that debate on the amendments would be limited to ten minutes. Percy Julian of Oberlin College introduced an amendment. A delegate objected to the consideration of the amendment; the objection failed. The Speaker ruled Mr. Julian's amendment out of order due to improper form. The decision of the chair was appealed and the Assembly upheld the chair. Sue Ann Baker of Indiana University introduced an amendment to the majority bill which was approved by the assembly. It was moved to suspend the rules to eliminate the roll call vote on the majority bill. The majority bill of the "effect on the U.S. economy" was adopted as amended. The Assembly recessed at 6:00 p.m. to reconvene at 8:30 a.m. April 14, 1962.

Judith Wallace
Clerk of the Assembly

The third Legislative Assembly convened at 8:45 a.m. April 14, 1962. Sixty-seven (67) delegates answered the roll call; 19 delegates absent. The rules were suspended to allow a resolution to be introduced by Lonnie Allen of the University of Michigan. The resolution proposed that the Assembly send a committee to obtain information about the proposed Delta Sigma Rho-Tau Kappa Alpha merger; the resolution failed.

The majority bill of the "political and military implications" committee was introduced by Lonnie Allen of the University of Michigan. An amendment proposed by Dick Grier of DePauw was passed. An amendment by Larry Hand of Indiana University failed. The rules were suspended to eliminate the roll call vote on the majority bill. The majority bill passed as amended. Steve Thal of the University of Michigan introduced the majority bill of the "effect on the world market" committee. Cameron Hendershot of Rockford College moved to substitute the minority bill for the majority bill. A new roll call was requested to determine the membership of the Assembly; 71 delegates present, 15 absent. The motion to substitute the minority bill failed. It was moved to postpone to an indefinite time the majority bill. A roll call vote (47-28) was in favor of postponing action. John Palmroth moved to rescind the motion to postpone to an indefinite time: the motion failed. A resolution was introduced by Pat Clary to commend Mr. Torrence for his work as parliamentarian. The Assembly adjourned at 10:30 sine die.

Impressions of the Congress

RICHARD S. CULP

Washington State University Student

Participation in the legislative process is an all too rare experience in the community today. For the most part the courses that a student takes concerning government deal with an explanation of the legislative process without giving some insight into the operation of the body. How often one hears the political Monday morning quarterback decry what he considers a political fourth-down pass. "Now here's what I would have done if I made the decisions," is a common line over most of our land. Little thought is given to the complex setting of the legislative situation and the intricacies with every piece of legislation that passes through any law-making body. There are those that think only in terms of the corruption and lobbying that take place in politics today and often the charge is leveled at the total system without regard to the facts. I for one am getting a little tired of hearing about the corrupt and decadent American political system from the professional pessimists that I have found on virtually every campus and in every community that I have visited in the last few years.

The opportunity of participating in the Delta Sigma Rho Congress was worth more to me than the standard forensic situation if for no other reason than the exposure to a diversified legislative process. I felt that perhaps at times the congress bogged on some moot points, but this was more than offset by the contact with a cross section of the students from around the country. When an individual participates in the student senate at his institution he is, for the most part, surrounded by others of similar background and geographic location. This serves as a good introduction, but the true exposure comes when he has a chance to meet other students from other universities. Delta Sigma Rho is not the only organization that offers such opportunities, but the level of participation is equal to or better than any of the others.

This article was intended as an expression of my impressions of the Congress, but I am not sure that it would satisfy me if this were limited to the statements of "I liked" or "I disliked" this or that about it. I have thought about what this article should be and each time I change my ideas, and existentialism creeps in and once again I think and try to come up with some concrete "feelings." The one basic response that permeates all others is the feeling that I have broadened my understanding of something that is basic to the continued freedom of every person. The Congress was not a high-fidelity stereo version of the United States Congress, but I don't feel that this was intended or as important as the experience that comes from the exposure. There is a movement across the face of the United States today that would limit the exposure that a student receives; limit his exposure to radical political views both left and right; limit his freedom to investigate all the facts of the interaction of world-wide cultures and political ideologies. The freedom to investigate must never be denied the citizen and every opportunity of investigation is an essential part of our continued existence as a free member of society. Perhaps some changes will be made in the structure of the Congress, but as long as the free flow of ideas between students from all parts of the country is maintained it will be worthy of recognition by the academic community.

Within the setting of the D.S.R. Congress it appeared to me that an awareness of the international scene was greater than what would normally be found in a student group. The topic, of course, had a good deal to do with this awareness, but problems not in this area seemed to come up for discussion over coffee and in general gatherings. Above all, though, American students as exemplified by those at Bloomington seemed to have one thing in common: they were informed and concerned. I found no "Right-Wingers," or "Left-Wingers," but rather an understanding of what must be done in order to maintain and defend our system of government from attacks both left and right.

Report of the Evaluation Committee for the 1962 Delta Sigma Rho Student Congress

The essential work of the Evaluation Committee was done by the student members of that committee. This report is written by Dr. Edward Robinson as chairman, from notes by the committee.

In terms of facilities and arrangements, the committee wishes to report favorably as follows:

1. Housing, particularly the fact that living quarters and meeting places were in the same building, was excellent.
2. The banquet and banquet speaker were very good.
3. The keynote speaker provided an excellent source for information on the topic.
4. The rule book, preliminary bibliography, and study guides were in general quite adequate.

The committee notes need for improvement as follows:

1. Some caucus rooms lacked proper ventilation and noise level control. It was particularly suggested that an attempt be made to avoid use of rooms divided by folding doors.

2. Faculty members of the Evaluation Committee were required to spend too much time in sponsor forums and business meetings.
3. Student representatives to the Evaluation Committee were not clearly identifiable by the other student delegates.
4. The opening night meeting ran too late. In general the committee favored extending the session into Saturday afternoon. There was a minority opinion that the Congress might be started earlier in the day on Thursday.
5. There was some feeling that the topic for the Congress was not readily divisible, that some students overemphasized election of officers at the expense of the legislative process, and that too many participants were unprepared both on the topic and with regard to parliamentary procedure.

The following specific recommendations received majority but not unanimous support of the committee:

1. Article XVI, sec. 1 has a misprint in the rule book.
2. Article Xf should be modified to read that the speaker, parliamentarian and clerk
3. The provision for passing in a roll call vote should be eliminated.

4. Seating rules should be created for the general assembly.

Congress Bill Number 1

Joint Conference Committee on Effect on
United States Economy

An Act to promote the commerce of the United States through international agreements and through adjustment assistance to domestic industry, agriculture, and labor, and for other purposes.

BE IT ENACTED BY THE STUDENT CONGRESS
OF DELTA SIGMA RHO

SECTION 1. That this Student Congress endorse H. R. 9900, the Trade Expansion Act of 1962, with the modification that the “peril point” and “escape” clauses be eliminated.

1962 Delta Sigma Rho Student Congress

Resolution Number 1

Joint Conference committee on the political and economic implication of the European Economic Community

WHEREAS, a strengthened European Economic Community would strengthen NATO; and WHEREAS, the strengthening of underdeveloped countries is an effort that is common to both the United States and the Common Market nations; and WHEREAS, foreign policy is best served by the United States seeking an active economic affiliation with the European Economic Community; therefore BE IT RESOLVED BY THE TENTH DELTA SIGMA RHO STUDENT CONGRESS, that: 1. The United States should continue to support the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) so long as NATO defends and maintains the security of the Western Hemisphere, and the members of the EEC should be encouraged by the United States to assume greater financial responsibility for the support of NATO;

2. As the member nations of the EEC shall become more financially able, the members of the EEC should be encouraged by the United States to assume more financial responsibility for economic and technical assistance to the underdeveloped nations of the world;

3. We believe that established industries which are unable to compete as a result of increased imports should not receive tariff or governmental protection; however, we advocate an expansion of the suggested retraining program to cover the affected laborers.

Resolution Number 2

WHEREAS, Dr. Mildred F. Berry has served as faculty sponsor of the Rockford College Chapter of Delta Sigma Rho from 1933 to date; and

WHEREAS, During this time she has conducted herself in a manner exemplifying the highest ideals of Delta Sigma Rho and reflecting credit upon herself and both the local and National Chapters of that organization; and

WHEREAS, She will be concluding her service to the chapter and the students of Rockford College at the end of the current academic year, Therefore

BE IT RESOLVED BY THE TENTH DELTA SIGMA RHO STUDENT CONGRESS: That Dr. Mildred F. Berry be commended for outstanding leadership and exemplary performance of duty.

D

Resolution Number 3

BE IT RESOLVED BY THE TENTH DELTA SIGMA RHO STUDENT CONGRESS:

1. That Dr. Donald Torrence of Knox College be commended for his outstanding services as Congress Parliamentarian.

Resolution Number 4

BE IT RESOLVED BY THE TENTH DELTA SIGMA RHO STUDENT CONGRESS:

1. That we extend our sincere thanks to Dr. Robert C. Jeffrey and his staff for organizing the Student Congress of Delta Sigma Rho and to Indiana University for allowing us to use the excellent facilities of the Indiana Memorial Union.

F

Resolution Number 5

BE IT RESOLVED BY THE TENTH DELTA SIGMA RHO STUDENT CONGRESS:

1. That we extend our sincere thanks to Professor Russell B. Nye for his informative and entertaining banquet address to this Congress.

G

Resolution Number 6

BE IT RESOLVED BY THE TENTH DELTA SIGMA RHO STUDENT CONGRESS:

1. That we extend our sincere thanks to Professor William R. Hoskins for his informative and pertinent speech before the first session of this Congress.

H

Resolution Number 7

BE IT RESOLVED BY THE TENTH DELTA SIGMA RHO STUDENT CONGRESS:

1. That Herold T. Ross, National President, and the other National officers of Delta Sigma Rho be commended for their exemplary performance of office during the years 1961-62.

Student View of Delta Sigma Rho Student Congress

As Clerk of the Liberal Party caucuses, Clerk of the Steering Committee, and Clerk of the Assembly I had direct contact with the work of the Tenth Delta Sigma Rho Congress. I found the old maxim of the "smoke filled room" to be quite true.

The majority of the work on the subject of the European Common Market was done by the committees. The Joint Conference Committees determined the nature of the bills to be considered by the Assembly.

The Party policies were determined by informal conferences among Party leaders (usually not limited to the elected leaders). The caucuses then served the purpose of unifying the party behind these policies.

The Steering Committee determined the agenda and procedures for the Assembly.

By the time the Speaker called the Legislative Assembly to order the areas of action were closely delineated. I think one of the weaknesses of the Legislative Assembly was based on a lack of understanding of its proper function. Its purpose should have been to perfect and polish the bills reported out of the Joint Conference Committees and then accept or reject them as the expressed opinion of the Assembly. Although many of the amendments proposed were intended to better express the purpose of the bill, too often the amendments were designed to destroy the effectiveness or change the intent of the bill.

In viewing the proceedings from the Clerk's table another fault of the Assembly seemed to be the attempt by a few delegates to use parliamentary tricks to confuse and delay action by the majority. Perhaps some of the confusion resulted from a lack of knowledge of parliamentary procedure but the flurry of "point of order" cries from the floor too often attempted to gain an advantage for a particular bill or amendment, not to insure democratic procedure.

In considering the actual bills passed by the Congress I don't think anyone would be surprised. They are moderate proposals to encourage the common market and support President Kennedy's plan. These gained strong approval from both Liberals and Conservatives with only a few Liberals advocating more extensive participation in the Common Market.

An examination of the minutes reveals that only a few delegates entered into floor debate of these bills—the majority exercising only their right to vote. This is unfortunate, however, I don't think the main value of the Congress depends upon the originality of the legislation, the floor debate, or even the committee discussion of the specific topic.

The orientation to party politics and legislative processes make the Student Congress unique. Debaters are constantly involved in problem solving through debate and discussion contests, but the Delta Sigma Rho Congress provides the opportunity to become familiar with the organizational structure and compromise attempts of party politics.

I'm sure the Tenth Delta Sigma Rho Congress was a success and I feel privileged to have served as Clerk of the Assembly. I like to think that as Clerk I learned a little more than most of the delegates and I certainly did enjoy the experience.
