2017

Painting the Persona

Reed Dean White

Minnesota State University, Mankato

Follow this and additional works at: http://cornerstone.lib.mnsu.edu/etds

Part of the Painting Commons

Recommended Citation

White, Reed Dean, "Painting the Persona" (2017). All Theses, Dissertations, and Other Capstone Projects. 680.

http://cornerstone.lib.mnsu.edu/etds/680

This Thesis is brought to you for free and open access by the Theses, Dissertations, and Other Capstone Projects at Cornerstone: A Collection of Scholarly and Creative Works for Minnesota State University, Mankato. It has been accepted for inclusion in All Theses, Dissertations, and Other Capstone Projects by an authorized administrator of Cornerstone: A Collection of Scholarly and Creative Works for Minnesota State University, Mankato.
Painting the Persona

By

Reed White

A Thesis Submitted in Partial Fulfillment of the Requirements for the Degree of

Master of Arts

In

Art

(Painting)

Minnesota State University, Mankato

Mankato, Minnesota

May 2017
March 20, 2017

Painting the Persona

Reed White

This thesis has been examined and approved by the following members of the student’s committee.

Brian Frink
Advisor

Curt Germundson
Committee Member

Candace Black
Committee Member
I am an oil painter who paints the human form as a subject. My technique varies between loose transparent glazes to more realistic impasto, revealing the process in which I paint. My colors are often exaggerated and unrealistic.

I choose to paint people in my community because it reveals a story about the time and place I live in. I enjoy painting people because we are interesting as physical objects: color, form, the way our bodies change as we age, what we chose to wear, etc. We come in many different sizes, colors, shapes, our postures and facial expressions articulate our emotions. We all have the experience of being human in common, and as a social species, are instinctively curious about other humans. We all have a story to tell, I try to express what I perceive with paint. I try to capture the persona of a person by painting with as few brush strokes as possible.

As an artist, I want my paintings to be interesting rather than a stagnant documentation of a person. I sometimes force the use of odd colors, outlines, incorrect perspective, etc., to escape the impulse to strive for perfection. When a painting is completely resolved, it looses something. There is a point when an unpolished painting has an energy, a vitality, and holds so much potential, a point at which the process is still evident. When the painting is purposefully imperfect, the viewer can focus on what I find to be important: the colors, the marks, the composition, the paint, and still see the persona of the person I painted.